House Committee Favors Billion and Half Outlay For Army, Navy Branches

Appropriation Includes Funds for Developing Pacific Bases at Guam and Samoa

Ships Authorized Submarine Chasers and Other Craft Will Result From Program

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—An immediate outlay of $1,533,439,702 in cash and contract authorizations for the army and navy was recommended by the House appropriations committee today. The sum included funds to develop naval aviation outposts in the Pacific islands of Guam and Samoa.

In addition to money for a vast expansion of its shore bases, the navy's $838,321,702 share of the total included funds to start construction of 400 submarine chasers and other small craft and to make possible the delivery by the end of 1943 of 55 more destroyers than had been planned originally.

The bulk of the army fund of $695,118,000 was earmarked for construction, both new and under way. A total of $338,800,000 was included to complete 186 cantonments and other housing projects for which the original estimates were too low.

The committee emphasized that despite delays and cost increases, the army was entitled to commendation for the manner in which the $1,000,000,000 housing program had been conducted.

In connection with the program, the committee recommended a $15,000,000 item to enable the army to make advance engineering surveys and other plans for any future construction which may be necessary. Col. Brehon Somervell, chief of construction, testified that availability of such a fund before the present program started would have saved the government $100,000,000.

Included in the navy share were funds for 40 motor minesweepers, already under contract, and four others to be acquired before June 30; $10,000,000 for construction of "mosquito fleet" bases to cost ultimately about $43,000,000 and $100,000,000 to start the installation of equipment to protect merchant vessels from magnetic mines. About 1,600 vessels are to be so equipped.

Naval Aviation Sums
A total of $96,382,300 in cash was recommended for naval aviation to apply on the cost of 7,129 planes ordered last year and to permit the purchase of 189 of the most expensive types of planes, acquisition of which was postponed because last year's appropriation was inadequate.

An additional $30,000,000, half cash and half contract authority, was included to enable the navy to finance further expansion of aircraft factories. Congress already had given the navy $60,000,000 for that purpose during the current fiscal year.

The committee recommended expenditure of $42,000,000 for establishment of three new army air corps depots for the maintenance of planes under the 54 combat group program and the enlarged group training plan. The depots would be established in the northeast, southeast and midwest areas but specific locations were not announced.

A total of $9,243,825 was included for work on the army air bases at Anchorage and Elmendorf Field in Alaska after Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, testified that immediate provision of the funds would save months.

Health Board Asks Nearby Towns Aid Rabies Quarantine

Dr. Poley Suggests Local Board Request State to Enforce Ban and Assist Control

Kingston's health board Tuesday evening took action toward the better enforcement of quarantine for rabies among dogs in the towns surrounding Kingston when Dr. Philip Poley, local veterinarian and meat inspector of the health department, recommended that the matter be taken up with the state health department.

Dr. Poley said that rabies would never be stamped out unless the surrounding towns now under quarantine took steps toward enforcing quarantine provisions. He recommended that the health board communicate with the state health department asking that the department require the surrounding towns to enforce the provisions of the quarantine.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who presided at the meeting, agreed with Dr. Poley and the board directed a communication be sent to the state commissioner of health, calling his attention to conditions that existed and asking that some action be taken.

Dr. Poley called attention to the finding of a rabid dog at Binnewater in the town of Rosendale, and expressed the belief that that dog and the rabid dog found on Hurley avenue had been bitten by the same stray dog.

He urged the quarantine provisions be strictly enforced in the districts surrounding Kingston or there was bound to be other cases of rabies develop in the city from dogs here being bitten by dogs straying into the city from outlying districts.

Dr. Poley contended that only by strict observance of quarantine measures could rabies be prevented. He believed that the present state law requiring all dogs that roam the streets to be muzzled to be obsolete. He said that a muzzled dog, while it could not bite another dog or a person, could not defend itself if attacked by another dog, and if allowed to roam at large was liable to be bitten by a rabid dog.

In the discussion that followed the members of the board expressed the opinion that the rabies outbreak of last year was caused by a stray dog entering the city and biting other dogs, and that the dog found on Hurley avenue this year had been bitten by a dog from a town outside the city which had strayed into Kingston.

The health board will also ask the state health department to notify not only the public health officials but the local veterinarians when any town was placed under quarantine.

Efficiency Grows Army Air Corps Ground Crews Fight for Title in Changing Engines

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Army Air Corps has a new fight on its hands—an intra-mural scrap between ground crews for the championship in speed of changing airplane engines.

The scrap started with a challenge from the Mitchell Field, L. I., ground crew who set a record of three hours and twenty-five minutes in engine-changing. The Kelly Field, Texas, mechanics picked up their gloves and jerked out one engine and replaced it in two hours and forty-five minutes.

Randolph Field mechanics bettered the Kelly Field mark by making a change in one hour and one-quarter. So the Kelly Field experts promptly laid bets that they could do the job within an hour. They lost their bets but the plane was flying with a new engine in exactly 80 minutes.

Defense Contracts Total 15 Billions for U.S., Britain

Additional Billions Are in Prospect and 'Business as Usual' Faces Crimp Beyond Anticipation

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The gigantic size of America's arms production job was emphasized today by a survey indicating that contracts already placed totaled about $15,000,000,000—more than six times the estimated value of the automobile industry's entire output for 1939.

This figure represented formal awards both by the British government and United States defense agencies.

Nearly $6,000,000,000 of authorized American orders have yet to be placed under contract, although the government already has given manufacturers an informal but binding "go ahead" on much of this business. Moreover, additional billions in orders are in prospect, both for this country and probably for Britain under the pending lease-lend bill.

In the light of these fiscal facts, many officials believed that arms production eventually would put a deeper crimp into "business as usual" than most of the country realized.

The opinion was advanced in well informed quarters that the automobile industry would be required to divert its attention increasingly from passenger car output to the manufacture of airplane engines, sub-assemblies for aircraft and perhaps ultimately complete planes.

Many defense industries still were in the process of "tooling up," and no large-scale rounded deliveries of munitions appeared in prospect before next fall. Peak production in some lines was scheduled well along in 1942, in others still later.

Plane deliveries during January totaled 1,026, better than the figure predicted officially a month before. William S. Knudsen, director general of the office of production management, was encouraged to forecast an output of 18,000 planes this year. Experts in the industry estimated that President Roosevelt's goal—the capacity to produce 50,000 planes a year—would not be reached, under programs announced thus far, until the end of 1944.

Hatch Will Try to Alter His Measure

Author of Clean Politics Law Will Endeavor to Strengthen Terms of Act

Probe Is Finished

Milligan Says Law Is 'Fatally Defective' as It Stands

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Senator Hatch (D., N. M.) today considered strengthening the "clean politics" law which bears his name, after Maurice M. Milligan, special assistant to the attorney general, labeled the act "fatally defective."

Milligan marshalled evidence for a federal grand jury which yesterday completed nearly three months' investigation of 1940 election campaign expenditures. The grand jury reported it had found nothing to justify indictments, although "unquestionably a very large sum of money" had been spent in the campaign.

Milligan recommended sweeping changes in both the Hatch Act and the Corrupt Practices Law.

Hatch said he talked over the suggestions briefly with Milligan and that they were "very good."

"I have felt for some time," the New Mexico senator told reporters, "that the law ought to be strengthened and improved, and I have been waiting for the results of the grand jury investigation and Mr. Milligan's report, along with the reports of the congressional committees concerned with campaign expenditures."

Transmission Expected
Justice department officials indicated that Milligan's report to Attorney General Jackson would be transmitted to the Senate and House elections committees.

Milligan recommended these legislative changes:

Rewording of the Hatch Act so that all money spent on behalf of a presidential candidate would be counted against the $3,000,000 allotted to his party. Under some interpretations of the present law, any committee—state, local or national—might spend up to $3,000,000 on behalf of a presidential nominee.

Rewording of the Hatch Act to put an effective ceiling on the amount which may be contributed to the support of a candidate by any one person. The present limit is $5,000 for an individual, but as the law has been interpreted it does not limit the number of group to which that sum may be given. Milligan said that he felt that $3,000 appeared to be "unnecessarily low" as an absolute limit on an individual however.

Broadening of the Corrupt Practices Act to include groups working for or against legislation pending in congress as well as groups working for candidates for federal office.

Expanding the Corrupt Practices Act to prohibit use of the mails for literature in support of a candidate for federal office or seeking to influence legislation pending in congress unless the matter is signed by the persons or group responsible for its circulation.

Bodies Removed From Lackawack Burying Grounds

More Than 500 Are Taken From Graves in Area to Be Covered by New Reservoir

More than 500 bodies from cemeteries occupying the site of the Lackawack dam of the New York city water supply system which have not been identified have been placed in the Fairview Cemetery at Stone Ridge, where New York city has purchased a plot.

These bodies are classified as "Unknown," of whom no descendants were found, and consequently no claims were made. These bodies are being removed under contract and reinterred in the Fairview Cemetery. At each grave will be placed a stone marker with such designation that the remains from any unknown grave may be located should a possible claimant appear.

The bodies removed from the cemeteries have now reached a total of 1,622, of which more than 500 have been identified. Nearly two-thirds of those identified have been reinterred in the cemetery at Grahamsville.

Most of the applicants for removals were residents of the general vicinity, but applications were received from as far away as Miami, Fla.; Bangor, Me.; and Los Angeles. The last body was removed on June 2, 1940. The latest burial was made in 1936 and the earliest of record.

"Died, Sept. 28, 1819, aged 101 years, 1 month and 11 days. Buried in 1819. Born in 1718."

There now remain 505 unidentified bodies classified as "Unknown," of whom no descendants were found, and consequently, for which no claims were made. These will be removed under contract and reinterred in the Fairview Cemetery at Stone Ridge in Ulster county, 25 miles distant where the Board of Water Supply has purchased a plot. Private Scism is a son of Samuel P. and Anna Elizabeth Dingee Scism of Lawrenceville street, Lincoln Park, Kingston, and besides his parents is survived by a brother, Benjamin Scism, and six sisters, Anna, wife of John J. Johnston, Jr.; Belle, wife of Robert Boss; Hazel, wife of Robert Felton, and the Misses Bertha, Charlotte and Ernestine Scism, all of Kingston.

The body will be shipped to A. Carr & Son of Pearl street and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Masculine Precision

Paris, (via Berlin), Feb. 26 (AP)—New suits in today's fashion parade were finished with masculine precision, but a saving feminine touch was introduced by organdy blouses with flared fronts and field flower bouquets for mannish lapels. Closely-fitted redingotes in patterned wools and silks, fine-striped wools and pencil-striped dark fabrics were among the collections. One house featured tailored silk suits in checked surah and double-breasted models with horizontal stripes.

Comments by the inspired press in the Nazi-occupied former capital were for the most part favorable.

Bristow, Okla., Feb. 26 (AP)—A raging inferno of thousands of gallons of gasoline, ignited as four huge storage tanks exploded one by one, was brought under control by firemen last night after a five-hour battle with steam and chemicals.

The flames ignited one dwelling in the negro section but damage there was light. Four hundred residents were evacuated.

W. M. Fraser, refinery superintendent, had not ascertained the cause of the explosion. He estimated damage between $10,000 and $15,000.

Hearing Is Listed March 12 on State Road Proposals

One Bid Would Permit Use of $60,000,000 From Grade Crossing Fund; Other Is Bond Issue

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—New York's Legislature today called a public hearing for March 12 on highway construction proposals, one permitting a $60,000,000 diversion of grade crossing elimination funds and the other, providing for a $200,000,000 bond issue.

Diversion of $60,000,000 of grade crossing bonds funds was proposed by Governor Lehman last year as a constitutional amendment. Approved by the 1940 Legislature, it must be passed again before it can be submitted to the electorate, suggested by Senator Arthur Wick, Kingston Republican, and Assemblyman Harry Roux, Warren Republican, would finance road construction by a bond issue to be amortized in 10 years through state retention of one quarter of the four cents a gallon gasoline tax.

The scheduled hearing, leaders asserted, is expected to bring the steadily growing highway financing controversy to a climax and lead to an early legislative vote.

Simultaneously, a Republican legislative bloc voiced support of a "reasonable" reduction in the governor's $47,000,000 home relief appropriation to permit transfer of some of the funds to town and county highways.

Based on Transfer Theory
The request, coming as majority party leaders perfected plans for slashing "about $5,000,000" from the governor's $385,700,000 new state budget, was based on the theory transfer of a small percentage of the proposed home relief expenditures would create road-building jobs.

Spokesmen of the Republican group maintained at least $1,700,000 of the appropriation could be shifted to highways, thus eliminating the executive's recommended cut in road funds and at the same time transforming unemployment relief funds into wages for work.

Meanwhile, at Buffalo, representatives of six taxpayers' organizations approved a four-point plan designed to "permit a $20,000,000 tax cut." It included:

A $7,000,000 further relief appropriation reduction, pegging state department expenses and state aid for education at 1939-40 levels to save an estimated $12,000,000, elimination of the $500,000 "blank check" fund to the governor for defense and of the $350,000 budget allowance for differential salary payments to state employees who are members of the National Guard.

Donnell Is Sworn Chief Executive of Missouri, Ending Contest

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 26 (AP)—Forrest C. Donnell, at last, became governor of Missouri today to the accompaniment of a 19-gun salute.

The legislature, overwhelmingly Democratic, refused to seat Donnell, a St. Louis Republican, on schedule six weeks ago, voting instead to investigate charges of November election irregularities filed by the Democratic state committee.

On Donnell's appeal, the state supreme court ordered him inaugurated, ruling that only after he was seated could the contest proceed.

Lawrence McDaniel, St. Louis Democrat, defeated by 3,613 votes last November, then personally challenged Donnell's election for the first time.

Victory in Africa Is Called Important Step in Conquering Italian Somaliland

Gay Greeting

British Visitors Receive Ovation Upon Arrival in Turkey

(By The Associated Press)
Stunning new smashes against Italy's African empire were reported by the British today even as the House of Commons in London was informed that "German preparations for an occupation of Bulgaria are now far advanced."

Foreign Undersecretary R. A. Butler, in making this report, said Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government was "completely satisfied" with Turkey's attitude in carrying out the Turkish-British military alliance.

The Turkish press has said repeatedly that Turkey would resist any German thrust into southeast Europe, but the question of whether Turkey would fight if Nazi troops crossed Bulgaria to invade Greece still posed a major mystery.

Striking with blitzkrieg rapidity, British troops were officially declared today to have captured Mogadiscio—capital and chief seaport of Italian Somaliland—after a 400-mile sweep which started from the Kenya frontier just a month ago.

The East African city fell last night, a Nairobi communique announced, marking "an important step in the conquest of Italian Somaliland."

Only yesterday, the British reported, their forces seized the Italian Ocean port of Brava, 110 miles from Mogadiscio, in a drive up the colonial coast.

Prisoners Are Captured
The British also announced they had taken more than 3,000 Italian prisoners in a 60-mile advance up the Juba river from Gelib, in Somaliland.

Other British troops were reported hammering at Cheren, 42 miles from Asmara, the capital of Italian Eritrea.

On the Axis side, both Rome and Berlin reported that German motorized troops clashed with British armored forces in Libya, North Africa, for the first time Monday and destroyed armored cars and took prisoners.

The Germans escaped without losses, it was asserted, in what apparently was little more than a skirmish between desert patrols 100 miles south of Bengasi.

Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden arrived in Ankara on a fence-building mission to the Turkish capital, accompanied by Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff.

Cheering crowds greeted them as they arrived aboard President Ismet Inonu's special train, and speculation immediately arose that on the outcome of their talks with Turkish leaders might hinge a British decision to send troops from Egypt to Bolster Greece against a possible German invasion.

The Germans said a Nazi speedboat sank a British destroyer off the southeast coast of England; German U-boats sank an 8,000-ton armed British merchant ship, and a patrol boat, and Nazi planes bombed and set afire three British cargo vessels totaling 21,000 tons northwest of Ireland.

War, Famine and Disease Spell Complete Chaos for Europe

Hunger Is Factor Most Likely to Crack Civilians

Hitler's Greatest Anxiety Seems Disorganization of Continent; Industry Is Headache

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

When you add up and get the sum total of the economic, financial, industrial and agricultural disorganization of Europe, coupled with attendant food shortages and consequent disease, there is no escaping the conclusion that the Old World is headed straight and fast for utter chaos.

The last war was tough enough. Germany finally collapsed, white-faced and hungry. Through strangulation by the British blockade, plus military pressure, but some countries weren't directly involved and came through well.

This time, however, virtually all the nations of Europe are up to their necks in the slough. The conflict, although only eighteen months old, is dragging them pell-mell into a hell that will make the previous war look like a Sunday school picnic.

Both sides are attempting to capitalize this grim position. Each trying to shatter the civilian morale of the other.

British Air Minister Sinclair yesterday emphasized the intention of the Royal Air Force to bomb Germany in Germany to "shatter the faith of the German people in Adolf Hitler." Well, bombing isn't likely to crack the morale of the Germans, though force hunger might. Hitler has learned the difficulties of terrorizing the Britons into submission by bombs, and now is trying to establish a counter-blockade on England in an effort to starve the country.

Disorganization Is Worry

The Nazi's chief anxiety undoubtedly is the grave disorganization of the continent. You see in his plans for a quick conquest of Britain; you see it in his attempts to reorganize Europe into his new order and get the continent on its feet; you see it in his efforts to avoid opening up a new front in the once fruitful Balkans to further disorganize that part of Europe.

Economic warfare experts in London yesterday stated that the supplies of the occupied nations had been exhausted and that Germany "already is feeling a pinch in oil, cotton, copper, rubber and nickel." Germany's economic position is said to be steadily worsening.

The Nazis also are faced with this problem, according to these experts: Masses of industrial materials were sent into Germany from conquered countries a year ago when the high command thought they had the war won. Now arises the stern question of how to return this material and get the people to work.

The American agricultural department a couple of days ago blamed Germany for the critical food shortages in the occupied countries of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France. This report says that the Nazis have drained these countries of supplies in order to make up food deficiencies at home.

Eating Sea-Gulls

A recent news dispatch from Sweden pictured the hungry people of some sections of Norway as eating sea-gulls and crows. But the countries named aren't by a long shot the only ones short of food. France, Spain and Italy all are getting in a bad way, and over in southeastern Europe scarcity of food gives rise to fears of a typhus epidemic.

The Germans have been struggling to bring the occupied countries, and unoccupied ones for that matter, within the Reich economic and industrial scheme of operations. For example, authoritative reports received in diplomatic quarters in Washington state that the Reich is in process of transforming Holland, one of the world's great trading nations, into a Nazi economic colony.

However, it is said that the Germans are encountering severe problems, due to the British blockade, the breakdown of industrial and shipping facilities, and other effects of the war. That would appear to be the story throughout Europe in which all countries are either occupied or standing at arms.

One of these days, if this war is drawn out, Europe is going to blow open like a rotten egg.

There was little expectation that the two-geran navy would be completed before 1946, and naval builders were still wrestling with the problem of speeding up construction of escort vessels like destroyers and subchasers, which British and U. S. navies want in large numbers.

War department officials reported that production of the Garand semi-automatic rifle had reached 3,000 a week.

Laboratory Test To Show if Dog Had Been Rabid

Tuesday the head of a dog which had died in the dog pound on the City Home farm was sent to the state laboratory in Albany to ascertain if the animal had been afflicted by rabies.

The dog had been in quarantine in the city pound since February 20. On that day Dog Warden Andrew G. Griffin at the request of the owner of the dog, had taken the animal to the pound.

The dog had been taken ill with fits, said the dog warden today, and for that reason the owner had wanted the animal kept under quarantine. The dog, it was said, had not come into contact with other animals. The owner of the dog, it was said, lives on Lucas avenue.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, said today that while the rabies quarantine is in force in Kingston, all persons bitten by dogs should report the matter promptly to the health department together with the name and address of the owner of the dog, if the name could be ascertained. This is necessary, said Dr. Sanford, so that the dog may be examined by the board's veterinarian.

All dog bites, said Dr. Sanford, should be cauterized immediately by a physician.

BUILD YOUR OWN SECURITY

In these days of unprecedented spending by our legislators and increased taxation from all agencies with taxing authority, thrift and economy seem to belong to another day.

In those days the youth of land were urged to practice thrift and self restraint in order to build up security and competence for their later years. Today there seems to be a feeling that if you spend as you go, Uncle Sam will take care of you when you are old.

Uncle Sam cannot take care of us when we are old if we throw the rules of past economy into the discard and depend entirely on social insurance and old age pension to turn the trick when we retire.

It may be argued that if a man will not save for himself, the government should take something from his wages and something from the national purse to build security for him. Yet this will not give the comfort and well being that a man deserves who has labored hard for his entire life.

Roger Babson, writing in The Freeman recently, declared "Social Security can never be obtained by paying back to the government a certain percentage of your own earnings. Wage workers of Germany, France and even England are learning this today. Yes, it is a far better thing to provide one's own security."

More sensible words than this, on the subject of social security were never uttered. Old age insurance is in itself a dole which may keep the wolf from the door, but it is little else. The prudent and thrifty man and woman will try to do something for themselves, and will not depend entirely on the state. As Mr. Babson suggests, the first thing to do about it is to build or purchase and own one's home.

Nothing keeps one in the path toward sound democratic principles, and gives him a greater sense of security and well being than owning his own home, free of debt. Governments may change and the value of state pensions may fluctuate, but a home is a home, a haven of refuge and security. Of course even a home might be taken from one, in case of a violent Communist revolution but this is extremely improbable, well nigh impossible in a nation of home owners.

The intelligent young men and women will not depend on the government for social security. They will set out to build a sensible sort of security for themselves.

BUFFALO BILL'S OFFSPRING

Elderly men, and probably some young men, too, may be stirred by the news that two great-grandsons of "Buffalo Bill" Cody are serving with the British forces. One of them was wounded lately and is in a Turkish hospital. Could his great grandfather have imagined that? Or imagined the boy's uniform and weapons, or the reason for his scouting in that distant region?

But there isn't really anything very strange about those boys fighting away off there, for another country. The world is full of twentieth century Buffalo Bills, many of them small and many grown up, but all dreaming occasionally, at least, of outdoor adventure and defense against savages. The Boy Scout movement was not started by our hero of the Plains, but by an Englishman. Yet Baden-Powell seems to have taken much of his inspiration and method from such western pioneers as Buffalo Bill and Davy Crockett.

In the present war, no doubt, there's many a trick that an old plainsman would recognize. Especially in the North African campaign. How Bill Cody would have loved that—except for the lack of buffaloes!

WINE MARKETS

A vintner undertakes to spread cheer by telling California grape-growers that the war blight on European vineyards has made a potential market for 17,000,000 gallons of American wine. This hopeful statement seems to suggest that Americans can soon go ahead and sell their native wine to the world.

And so they could, perhaps, if somebody could only solve the little problem of getting their wine to the foreign markets when they have produced it. The same war conditions that are preventing the wine-growers of Europe from producing and distributing their product as usual are also preventing us from getting ours to them. We can't send it across, and they couldn't take it and pay for it if we did get it there.

There can be, of course, a more intensive cultivation of our American wine market, which got a considerable start in the last war.

WELCOMED BRIDGE

Work on the Rainbow Bridge between the United States and Canada is progressing. The first piece of steel was recently fitted into place.

This bridge will span the Niagara river a little below the Falls. It takes the place of the old Honeymoon Bridge that went down in an ice jam a few years ago, although it is not on the same site.

One reads in the European news that German soldiers are testing pontoon bridges over the Danube in the Balkan region, while the people who live along that river shudder at the uses they expect such bridges to serve. On the long border between Canada and the United States, a new bridge is built to encourage more travel back and forth between two friendly peoples. There is gratification at both ends because the bridge will provide additional border-crossing facilities.

It's an old story by now, taken for granted by most of us in normal times, but considered with fresh interest and thankfulness in the light of events in other parts of the world.

It might have been a good thing if Hitler had traveled more when he was a younger man, but one of the Allied war aims now is to keep him at home.

The President and Congress always seem to spend an awful lot of time just trying to keep each other out of mischief.

In the reshuffling of European war strategy, it seems to be assumed that Greece is going to take care of Hitler.

Some Americans can get more sentimental about pets than about human beings.

A QUICK METHOD OF RELIEF IN DIZZINESS

When an attack of dizziness, nausea, and vomiting occurs, most of us blame the liver and a dose of Epsom salts is the usual treatment.

More and more it is becoming known that many of these attacks of dizziness, nausea and vomiting are due to Meniere's disease. Meniere's disease is frequent or regular attacks of sudden severe dizziness, nausea, vomiting, head noises, and deafness.

Drs. C. H. Sheldon and B. T. Horton, Mayo Clinic, believe that the trouble is in the inner ear, due to swelling from blood or other liquid.

I have spoken before of the successful treatment of Meniere's disease by the use of a diet low in salt, and regular doses of ammonium chloride. Foods recommended to be used are those low in salt are apples, asparagus, cabbage, sprouts, lettuce, grapes, lemons, oranges, sugar, jelly, honey, unsalted butter and bread.

Foods to be avoided are salted butter, bread, crackers, eggs, milk, spinach, carrots, beets, oatmeal and all corned, pickled, smoked or salted foods.

Now the diet is considered the best treatment for general use but in severe attacks where relief must be obtained quickly, Drs. Sheldon and Horton report their success by the use of injections of histamine into a vein.

Eleven patients, all either partially or totally disabled by the symptoms of Meniere's disease were treated by the slow administration of histamine. There was immediate relief of vomiting, head noises, dizziness and deafness in all cases, sometimes before the injection was even completed. The standard dose is 1.9 mg. of histamine acid phosphate dissolved in a half pint of normal physiologic salt solution. The time required for the injection is about 1½ hours. In some instances this dose was given on either two or three successive days with no ill effects. It is given so slowly that there is no change in the blood pressure or pulse rate and the patients feel no untoward sensation except an occasional slight feeling of heat in the face.

The point then is that while the low salt diet and ammonium chloride will continue to be the routine treatment in Meniere's disease, the injection into the vein of histamine is, in the opinion of these physicians, a valuable, quick, and ready method of controlling the acute symptoms.

SO NEAR YET SO FAR

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

During 1915 and 1916 Kingston and Ulster county were popular for the filming of thrilling movie pictures. In 1915 pictures of the floating ice in the Rondout creek formed the basis of some of the spectacular scenes in the filming of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

In February, 1916, a group of 14 players of the Universal Film Company were busy filming a thrilling screen drama of the Canadian northwest in the fields near Rosendale and with the picturesque Ashokan reservoir as locale.

The name of this thriller when released was "Midwinter Madness" and featured Dorothy Phillips, Walpole and Barrington Barringer. The group of players made the Hotel Stuyvesant their headquarters when not out on location.

Interested citizens would watch the movie players portray their roles in front of the camera and some were fortunate enough to be used in some of the scenes of the drama.

I wonder how many of the older readers recall viewing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Midwinter Madness" on the screen when they were shown later in the movie theatres. Those, of course, were the days of the silent movies, and no one in Kingston dreamed that in a few short years the movies would become vocal.

It was in February, 1916, that William R. Harrison, who had lately retired from the wholesale grocery firm of Matthews & Harrison, formed a partnership with Leon Blankfield, and planned to erect a modern three-story brick building on Field Court to house a new grocery and feed concern under the name of Blankfield & Harrison.

Both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blankfield are now dead, but the firm continued in existence for a number of years here.

Mr. Harrison, it will be recalled by older readers, was also active in Republican politics in the city and served on the water board for some years.

I wonder how many readers recall Billy Scott, the colored night janitor at the city hall during the years of 1915-16. It was on Saturday afternoon, January 8, 1916, that Dr. Harold Clarke, sanitary inspector of the health department gave the court room in the city hall a thorough fumigation, the first it had received in years.

The act was the result of a tramp, who had every appearance of being drunk, accosting Billy Scott in the corridor of the hall and complaining that he was afraid to pass the open door of the court room at night as he had seen a number of curious beasts, which were neither flesh nor fowl, but partook of the characteristics of both, having 32 wings, 33 legs, 43 eyes and 21 arms. The tramp also reported he had seen several pink elephants chasing red, white and blue snakes all over the court room.

As the tramp had the appearance of not having bathed in a year and as others of his type frequented the court room when being arraigned on minor charges it was thought best to seek the aid of Dr. Clarke in making the room sanitary.

Citizen Who Waits Until Deadline to Fill Out Income Tax Blank May Get Unpleasant Surprise

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 26.—The American citizen who usually waits till a day or so before March 15th to make out his income tax return is in for a surprise this year. This is because the 1940 revenue act contains some stiff increases for persons in the so-called middle brackets—those between $5,000 and $50,000 a year.

One of the unfortunate circumstances connected with the new taxes is that the law was adopted by Congress after nearly three-fourths of the year 1940 had passed and the taxpayers in many instances either had disbursed their earnings or committed themselves to expenditures that could not be cancelled.

While it is true the government may get a substantially increased revenue this way, there is no certainty that on the expenditure side the government will not cost itself a good deal more. Thus, for instance, many citizens will retrench drastically in their purchases and this in turn will cause certain readjustments, and in some instances, temporary unemployment. While some of the unemployed will in time find jobs in defense industries or its by-products the interval in which the unemployment occurs causes an expense to the government either in the form of unemployment insurance or WPA jobs. It would not be surprising now if the WPA will be declared against further cuts in payrolls during the present year notwithstanding the increase in defense employment.

The tax situation has been clumsily handled by Congress. Had the tax been made effective January 1, 1941, the citizens could have adjusted themselves to the new levy, but he had no way to pay back taxes without materially cutting into his 1941 budget. Many a taxpayer will be found going into debt to pay his personal income taxes this year.

The extent to which the new taxes applicable to 1940 incomes will affect taxpayers can be inferred from a reading of the new table of surtaxes which starts jumping upward at much lower levels than heretofore. A person with a $25,000 income will pay $3,575 and a person with $50,000 will pay $13,750, if either is married and has two dependents. The increases are such that persons in the $100,000 class will pay at least $42,000 in federal taxes. Not only have surtax rates been increased, but a special defense tax of 10 per cent has been added against every individual. This means that after the normal and surtaxes have been assessed, the government imposes 10 per cent more on the total tax.

In many instances the taxpayers in the middle brackets will be asking their respective businesses to pay them higher salaries or fees as the case may be. But this does not afford the individual much relief, for on every additional $10,000 paid him above $50,000 he will have to pay the government approximately half in additional taxes.

The treasury department expects to raise two-thirds of the cost of government by taxation and about one-third through borrowing. The outgo is to be about $18,000,000,000 at least in the next fiscal year and it is calculated that the income from present taxes will bring about $9,000,000,000. This means that a way must be found to raise an additional $9,000,000,000 if the treasury formula is to be fulfilled. To get that amount of money it is argued that further increases in taxes must be made on 1941 incomes payable in March 1942. Talk of another law is in the air.

To take $12,000,000,000 in taxes out of the national income for the federal government alone is to double the highest year of tax receipts in our history. The theory that more money can be derived from higher tax rates has been exploded by experience, but the treasury has refused to accept it. Again and again it has been demonstrated that the lower the surtax rates the higher the total income for the treasury.

One effect of the new taxes doubtless will be to cause public opinion to insist on retrenchment in non-defense items in the government. It is very likely that the Congress which is up for election in November 1942 will find its record on economies in non-defense appropriations under close scrutiny. The effect on the economic system of these sudden adjustments of higher rates and the deflationary results that may ensue therefrom are bound to come up for debate in the coming political campaigns. Let My People Go

By Henrietta Buckmaster

Henrietta Buckmaster's "Let My People Go" is the anachronism of the week, a strange book to be arriving in this year of our Lord, 1941. This is the story of the abolition movement and the "Underground Railroad" told with extreme bitterness nearly 80 years after the emancipation of the Negro.

Why Miss Buckmaster thought anger and violence appropriate to a modern discussion of an old question such as this only she could say. It seems particularly unfortunate for, as far as I know, there exists no one, in the deep South or elsewhere, who wants the return of slavery or who defends it as an institution, or who does not decry the way the "peculiar institution" was administered in certain quarters.

Miss Buckmaster ignores a number of things in this long recital of incidents connected with abolition and the underground that slavery was a world institution at the time it was introduced into America. She overlooks the fact that once the Negro was imported, something had to be done about him, and the natural instincts of self-preservation operated in both the white and black populations of the fact that although distribution of wealth was unequal, between the races, it was almost as unequal between divisions of the white race. She does not see what seems evident to me that at no time before the war was it possible for the individual planter to do much more than he did, which was to care for his people as well as he could in a faulty economy—and hope for an answer.

I had the impression that Miss Buckmaster had indiscriminately accepted all anti-slavery men and forces as good, and all people who owned slaves, or counseled moderation in dealing with the question, as evil. She seems for example, to take old John Brown seriously. Certainly her indignation is eight decades late. Her acceptance of murder in the hands of slaves as worthy, and murder in other hands as unworthy, seems unrealistic. And the quotation from the Negro writer, Richard Wright, helps none. He says: "An impassioned and provocative depiction of the revolutionary impulses of a nation." This is inexact, at best.

To satisfy their desire for entertainment, organized workers of Villa de Rio Blanco, a Vera Cruz, Mexico, industrial center, have built a modern motion picture theatre accommodating 2,680 persons.

A. I. Roshchin claims to have reached an altitude of five and one-quarter miles in a balloon over Russia recently.

Income Tax

No. 27

Deductions for Tax on Motor Gas

If an automobile is used for both business and pleasure, both maintenance and operating expenses constitute allowable deductions for Federal income tax purposes should be allocated to the two uses on the basis of the time the car is used for each. For example, if the total expense of operation and maintenance, plus depreciation, for the taxable year amounted to $800, and the car was used three-fourths of the time for business and the balance of the time for pleasure, the allowable deductions for Federal income tax purposes, would be $600.

In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed and by whom they are paid. If a law imposing a tax on gasoline by its terms limits the tax on the consumer and not on the dealer, the consumer may deduct as a tax, for Federal income tax purposes, the amount of the gasoline tax paid by him; but the taxpayer must have kept records of the payment of such taxes in order that the deduction may be substantiated as is required by the regulations. The Federal gasoline tax is not deductible by the consumer. The taxpayer may ascertain whether a state gasoline tax is deductible by the consumer or by the dealer by addressing an inquiry to the collector of internal revenue for his district.

In any case where the gasoline purchased is used for business purposes, the tax may be regarded as a part of the cost of the gasoline and deducted as a business expense; but in such case the gasoline tax cannot be deducted separately as a tax under the item of taxes.

Army Develops Photography for Bombing Planes

Washington, Feb. 25 (AP)—The Army Air Corps has developed a mile-a-minute photographic service to aid bombing planes and artillery in attacks.

With a new super-speed method of developing and printing pictures it is possible to photograph an enemy position, process the picture on the return flight, drop it from the airplane and return to make additional pictures, thus giving a commanding officer a split-second pictorial record of enemy dispositions and movements.

This kind of survey work, it was said, promises to replace ground reconnaissance work by patrols working ahead of the main force of troops because it reveals details which could not be observed from the ground and the exact placement of batteries and troop concentrations.

Darkness would be no protection in the movement of troops since the army has developed parachuted magnesium flares which provide almost daylight illumination for night photography. Camouflage likewise is almost outmoded because of the development of color photography. Gun emplacements and ships disguised with variegated painting—which are often invisible to the eye—stand out like a sore thumb in an aerial color photograph.

The modern photographic reconnaissance plane, developed at Wright Field, Dayton, O., is equipped with the standard aerial cameras of the U. S. army air corps and a compact aerial darkroom in which two men work to push a negative through five processes make one or more prints and drop them in special holders to their own troops.

It is possible, by the use of new directional aids, for a pilot to fly a straight course for aerial mapping. Then by comparing the pictures with previously determined "fixes," or reference points, an artillery commander can drop shells on the target, or air bombardment group commanders can direct the accurate concentration of bombs on an objective.

Explanation From Bar President Is Requested

Editor, Kingston Daily Freeman:

Dear Sir:
Your February 22nd issue had a talk given by Arthur B. Ewig, president of the Ulster County Bar Association, on the 'Bill of Rights.'

In reading through the article I find that our distinguished lawyer from Kingston, made a statement which I and I'm sure your readers would appreciate an explanation of by Mr. Ewig.

The paragraph in his speech, 'We must be ever vigilant and we must defend our ears to the pernicious and poisonous propaganda of the Fascist and Communist leaders.'

Mind you sir, I'm not coming to the defense of any doctrine or ideology. I am merely curious as to why we should 'defend our ears.' What procedure would the distinguished president of the bar go about deafening our ears.

I don't know, perhaps I'm wrong however, I do know that God gave us a mouth which can shut or open eyes to do likewise, but thank God for leaving our ears open.

Is not Democracy based on 'See All,' 'Hear All' and 'Know All'? Especially our 'Bill of Rights.'

Sincerely yours,

J. Hodes,

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIAN GREY

YESTERDAY: Although it hurt her fiancé, Emily Perry, deeply, and caused a tempest in her family, Roger Congrave has refused to give up the girl he met by accident one day. She is lovely, and to balance the fact that she has no family background, she has really great beauty. Now Roger and Emily are in Mexico and their honeymoon is enjoying every instant. She is also, Roger thinks indulgently, dancing rather too much with the young Mexicans.

Chapter 19 Amarilla Lily

ROGER was standing at the bar one night when an American next to him watched Emily too closely.

"These Latin sure do fall for a blonde," he said to Roger. "And she's a real one. No converted Nordic there. Vikings in them that ancestry! And she's got what it takes. She's laying 'em low with a look. I'm in the show business in New York. Like to have her look me up some day. Know who she is?"

"She's my wife," Roger said stiffly.

The stranger looked at Roger queerly.

"O-ho!" he said thoughtfully. "No offense, Roger, but I know it was time for Emily to stop playing around at night spots with young Mexicans."

He spoke about it when they got back to their cottage just before dawn.

"So what?" Emily asked sleepily. "I'm not dancing. And I love it I thought we came down here for a good time."

She stretched her hands high in the air and drew her lovely body up with the little grace of a cat.

"We did. And I want you to have a good time. But must that mean so much dancing with young Mexicans? They're impressionable, you know."

"But darling, they're such marvelous dancers!"

Roger bent to kiss her good night, and Emily's arms caught him and held him closely.

"Darling, you don't want to spoil my good time, do you?" Her voice was a low voluptuous purr.

"No," Roger agreed after a moment. "Of course not, Emily. You know I adore you and want you to have everything in the world you want."

It was impossible to deny her anything.

"But don't fall in love with any of them," he warned her playfully.

"Love! My darling! A delightful scorn in her voice. As if would. You don't have to love a man to enjoy dancing with him. And besides, sweetie pie, there's you."

There's you! Just the way she said it was enough for the man. He never ceased to thrill over her.

Sleeping most of every morning, dawdling over elaborate, slowly served combinations of Mexican breakfast and lunch, going daily to the beach, Roger had neglected his mail. Letters had come that must be answered. At dinner in El Jardine Roger said:

"Could you sit in the patio this evening darling and watch the moon and the gardener at work making things beautiful for you while your husband writes some letters?"

"Oh, Roger, not tonight! It's a perfect night to go somewhere! Some other time."

"But I've neglected them as long as I can dear."

"Tomorrow morning then!"

"After being up all night, practically, I'll be sleeping tomorrow morning."

"Telegraph them then."

"Darling, I've got letters to write!" with attempted sternness.

But Emily was just as firm in her wish to play. And so two young men at the next table who had come from Mexico City in their big car at just about the time Emily and Roger arrived leaned over to suggest that Emily write them when his letters were finished.

"Perfect!" Emily said impulsively, and Roger was left nothing to do but agree. He spoke in fluent Spanish, thanking them, and asking them to look well after Emily. He trusted the men. They were both slightly older than he and as much Spanish grandees as if they had worn silk stockings and knee breeches, white ruffs and lace at their cuffs.

They left gaily, Emily calling back to Roger:

"Look for us where you find our darling—if not in one spot in another. And that wouldn't be too difficult, because Acapulco is a quaint little handkerchief of a town."

Ordered Out

LOVELY's escorts took her to a spot run by a woman called Amarilla Lily. Roger and Emily had been there often but they had seen the proprietress fleetingly only the first time they were there, though she was known the length and breadth of Mexico as the gayest of hostesses.

Lovely was putting on what amounted to an exhibition dance with a young Mexican when Amarilla appeared in the door at the back. There was suddenly something electric in the atmosphere. Amarilla's big voice came out in deep compelling waves.

"You, Pedro! Stop that dancing!" Her hand silenced the orchestra. "And you, American, go home to your husband and don't come here unless you come with him!"

Lovely stopped dancing and stared, the chiffon of her full skirt still moving. She saw her escorts on their feet.

"Am I being ordered out?" she asked, facing the woman frankly. "But why? We're paying our bills! Come on, boys, strike up the band!" with a gesture to the orchestra.

But no sound came from their strings. Amarilla had looked at them. She was walking slowly toward Emily.

"You can't order me out of here," Emily said, half laughing. "I have a right to be here."

"Get out!" Amarilla was saying slowly, softly under her breath but with strange force. "Get out! But I say, Back to your husband and don't come here again without him!"

Lovely's escorts were beside her. They were anxious to avoid any more of a scene. The older of the two men made her understand that it had happened because everyone liked her looks too much. That was the trouble. And perhaps they had better take her back to her husband. So they put her in their big car and drove up the hill. When they asked her what she would tell Roger she surprised them by saying frankly:

"Why the truth, of course. That I've been put out of a night club. Now isn't that something?" She turned to them and asked: "Are wives always chaperoned that way in Mexico?"

"It is stranger than anything I know," said the older of the two shrugging.

Roger thanked the men for bringing Emily home unexpectedly early.

"What happened darling?" he asked.

Lovely told him.

"Um," Roger said thoughtfully. "She is probably a very wise woman. I'm never comfortable when you're with some other man. You have a face, darling, that would liquidate any man's resolution. You're too beautiful!"

Secretly he was glad Amarilla had used strong arm methods but he was puzzled as to why, since the two men she had gone with were welcomed everywhere.

"I'm going back there some day and make her eat those words or tell me why," Emily said sleepily and dismissed the incident.

Pedro

LOVELY continued to live her days in a fever of activity. Shopping, swimming, dancing. Shopping, swimming, dancing. Round and round she went. Always in a hurry to get from one activity to another. Her audacity kept the Americans in the little resort town gasping and gossiping.

Roger was beginning to wonder how the dogs were at home. How Blue Streak's puppies were coming along. If there was show off in the litter. And in addition, a letter from his mother brought news that made him ponder.

"Don't be surprised," wrote Marcia, "if you run into the Perrys. They have started for Mexico, and of all things in that huge old Rolls. Emily wanted them to take her because it is in better repair, and Kar offered our coupe. But they refused it all and have started out in that relic. They'll probably have to buy a new car before they get back. We insisted that they go. They needed a change so. They couldn't seem to get adjusted again."

Roger knew what she had almost written there—"after your breaking off with Emily."

His mother had added: "Emily stayed with us for a week and now she's in the city looking for a job."

Emily looking for a job. Emily working. Roger couldn't imagine it. Lovely, poised, fragile Emily. He felt it wasn't even quite right. She didn't need the money. She shouldn't take a job from some girl who needed it. He couldn't understand Emily's being that.

The next night Roger saw Pedro at the bar of the night club they were visiting. He said:

"Pedro again, dear. Don't dance with him tonight. He's too young and he looks too earnest."

"Don't be silly! Pedro knows I'm married to you and that's that."

"I wish I could feel as sure about that as you do."

Lovely laughed softly, but the laughter died from her eyes when young Pedro, without breaking the rhythm, said to her:

"Today I have taken from the bank all my money. Now, in a minute, we go together."

Lovely looked at him blankly and missed a step.

"Oh, but Pedro, my husband! I'm married. I never dreamed—" but Pedro was interrupting gently. "So it is. I know. I have a boat waiting, a little boat but quite safe, that will take us across to Puerto Marquesa. There we can hide—I know the place—for days, months, for years until we are forgotten." An intense note in his voice almost frightened Emily.

"Oh, Pedro," she said not quite steadily, "I'm sorry. So sorry. We haven't either of us understood. I didn't mean it. I love my husband."

But Pedro was looking at her with his broken heart in his soft dark eyes.

"You haven't loved me?" he asked softly.

"No Pedro, no. Miserably. It's only been fun. I haven't meant—"

"I am sorry," the youth drew himself up and spoke stiffly. "I have misunderstood." He gravely took Emily's hand, then pulled it through his arm, took her back to Roger and without a word walked quickly out of the place.

Two-Legged Bloodhound

Pueblo, Colo. (P)—Police Capt. R. E. Pratt was investigating the theft of a revolver from an automobile. In the car he found a paper napkin. It had the unmistakable odor of hamburger with onions on it. The captain hurried to a nearby coffee shop. Sure, said the waitress, a couple of men had been in a few minutes before and had ordered hamburgers, which they took with them. Just then one of the fellows returned and ordered another hamburger. Capt. Pratt frisked him and sure enough, there was the revolver.

The values of the commemoratives are as follows: A 10 centavo red showing Father Camilo Henriquez, the "Father of Chile," who printed the first newspaper there; a 40 centavo green depicting the founder, Pedro de Valdivia; a 1.10 pesos red with picture of Governor Vicuna Mackenna, who was foremost in beautifying the city in the 19th century; a 1.80p ultramarine with a reproduction of a painting of the founding of Santiago by Pizarro's soldiers, commanded by de Valdivia, and a 3.60p dark blue portraying the foremost historian, Diego Barros-Arana.

Flashes of Life

Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press)

Ousted

Waynesville, Mo.—The demand for office space as a result of construction of nearby Fort Leonard Wood has been so great it turned T. A. Shockley into a curbstone lawyer.

He inserted this "notice to my clients" in a newspaper:

"The boom here has boomed me out of a place for an office. Will store my equipment and be a curbstone lawyer for next two months, at which time I expect to be able to rent one. Will be seeing you on the streets."

Surprise

Columbus, O.—An old age pension recipient wrote state officials:

"I wish you would take off that increase you just gave me. I've been getting along all right on what I have been getting. I guess you won't find many like me."

The officials agreed.

Doubling Up

Fremont, Neb.—Don Payne and Del Krinzien are more than close friends—they're almost duplicates.

Don and Del graduated from high school together two years ago, remained out of school a year before entering Midland College here. They enrolled in the same courses and at the end of their first semester received exactly the same grades in every subject.

And in the first nine games of the basketball season, each scored nine field goals and committed six fouls.

Evidence

Temple, Tex.—Toothprints—not fingerprints—landed a negro in jail.

Police, investigating a grocery store robbery, noted a large hunk was missing from a cheese. Prints of somebody's teeth—one plainly missing—were visible.

Chief Frank Boudin took one look in a suspect's mouth—and filed burglary charges.

Outdistanced

Jefferson City, Mo.—Siren screaming, scout car Patrolman William Tellman gave chase as a motorist raced through a school zone at 60 miles an hour.

The police car wheeled up to 40....

"I got his number, anyway," said Tellman, ruefully.

The scout car went to a garage for overhauling.

Bawl Room

St. Paul—For crying out loud! And that's just the reason for the crying room at the new Corpus Christi Catholic Church.

The room, built for the convenience of mothers with crying babies, is sound-proofed with glass partitions through which they can watch the service. An electric sound system also is being installed.

TITLES INCORRECT WHEN THEY PRECEDE WRITTEN SIGNATURES UNLESS THE WORDING IS IN THE THIRD PERSON

Entirely Polite, However, To Begin Greeting Card Message with "Mr. and Mrs. Blank Send You," etc.

It may have been because I repeat certain items of Christmas advice year after year that this year I tried to avoid repetition of directions. It is now long past Christmas but since greeting cards are sent at all seasons, the following letter will quite possibly be useful to many. The letter says:

"I've been meaning for many weeks to write about your article 'Sending Christmas Cards,' which my husband and I both appreciated, but to which we and some of our friends took exception on two points. The first is this: You said that 'Correctly a signature on a Christmas card should not include a title.' In our own case there are many people to whom we feel that it would be most unsuitable for us to send cards which had only our first names, since we are elderly and many of our friends are years younger. Also, my husband has the names of many professional associates on our list. What then is there left to do in such cases but to write our names prefixed by 'Mr. and Mrs.'?"

The second point is the part you wrote objecting to sending cards in unsealed envelopes so that half postage could be used. I don't believe you realize how many families there are today to whom a dollar and a half or two dollar saving is considerable. It didn't seem like you to encourage reducing the list of names to make up the cost of putting on sufficient postage in order to seal the flaps.

My answer to the first point is that titles are particularly incorrect when prefixed to written signatures. They are of course proper whenever the wording is in the third person. The conventional wording is: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith send you the season's greetings." To write, "Best wishes are herewith sent to Professor and Mrs. Brown (or Mary and John Very-young), would certainly be an awkward detour around the tabu.

As a matter of fact, since names, when engraved, are properly prefixed by titles, the engraved names, even though prefixed by title are not tabu, in the way that a written signature including title would be. Nevertheless, each time I write on this subject I feel it the duty of this column to mention how—even in engraving or printing—this flaw can be avoided.

On the second point, I would like to explain that I had no intention of calling the unsealed envelope tabu under all circumstances. As I have written many times, simple things rarely provoke criticism. By this, I mean an obviously expensive card in an unsealed envelope naturally suggests the better taste of buying less expensive cards (certainly not cutting the list of names) and putting on full postage. A simple card, particularly one sent by people whose exceptionally long list of friends far outruns a not at all exceptional income—would not be criticized by anyone. In other words, criticism is intended solely for those who, spending many times over as much as need be, spoil the whole effect by skipping on postage and leaving the flaps open. This is a very different angle from that of having to cut down one's list because of cost of postage.

Elmleaf Beetle May Be More Prevalent in Area

Discovery of the elm leaf beetle in the city and vicinity during the latter part of this month indicates that the insect will cause serious damage in the region unless the infestation is checked before summer, it was learned today.

Presence of the adult insects on elm trees during current warm days shows that they are likely to be more prevalent during the summer than last year.

This insect comes out in the spring in adult form, feeds from seven to 10 days on leaves of the elms. It eats small holes in the new leaves and also forms egg masses on the under side of the leaves. It dies after the feeding period, leaving the eggs to hatch.

From July 1 to July 15 the larvae hatch and feed on the underside of the leaves. This feeding lasts from two to three weeks and often results in complete defoliation of the trees infested.

Spraying is most effective from the latter part of June to July 1.

New England Hooked Rug Lends Charm to a Room

Use any material you have on hand (though woolen is best) and as for colors — the more the merrier! Lovely together are rose green, black, beige and orchid.

How to begin? On a large piece of burlap draw the shape of the rug, 23 by 37 inches. Then draw a 1-inch border and rule of 15 boxes, each 7 inches square. The floral and geometric designs you draw from patterns.

Now, after sewing carpet binding round your rug and tacking to a wood frame, you can hook.

With one hand, hold a strip of fabric (cut 1/2 inch wide) under the rug. With the other hand, thrust the hook through the burlap and pull up the strip, leaving a loop 1/2 inch high on top of the burlap. Carefully following your color scheme, hook the same way until the rug is finished.

Our 32-page booklet gives exact instructions and patterns for making the New England hooked rug. Also tells how to make other lovely hooked styles, as well as woven, braided, knitted, tufted and crocheted rugs.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of HOW TO MAKE YOUR OWN RUGS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

A great profusion of floral tributes added to the visible evidence of their esteem. On Monday evening the members of Van Derlyn Council, D. O. A. conducted their ritualistic service. The bearers were John and Albert Schussler and Francis and Augustus Fisher. The committal services were conducted by Pastor Gaenzle as the body was laid to rest in the family plot in Montrose cemetery.

Priorities Ruling More Than Term In Defense Plan

Announcement of the first mandatory priorities ruling—that against aluminum and machine tools—hardly had been made before there were developments that indicated that imposing of priorities on an important industry means more than just a term in the defense program. Addressograph-Multigraph Co. was told that aluminum needed to make addressograph plates for a government agency would furnish enough of the metal for 10 bombers. A thermos bottle manufacturer was told to look for a substitute. A well known manufacturer of washing machines is reported to have discontinued two models because of the aluminum priorities. Officials claim that they won't know who will be hurt or how badly until they examine the books of the Aluminum Co. of America today or tomorrow. Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., director of the priorities, said: "Wherever there is a priorities situation somebody is going to get hurt." Meanwhile plant expansion is under way and the trouble may be eliminated entirely when the new plants get into production.

Commodity markets eased after Monday's advance, although domestic sugar made new highs for the movement. Sugar is now more than half a cent higher than the 1940 low, spot sugar yesterday going to 3.12 cents a pound. Rise in freight rates, favorable 1941 marketing quotas and broadening sugar consumption are leading factors. Stocks on the New York Exchange continued their rise Tuesday, for the fourth consecutive day. Greatest activity was in the rail hour when 110,000 of the day's total of 357,230 shares changed hands, a late flurry in steel and motors accounting for a good share of the rise. In the Dow Jones averages the list of 30 industrial stocks had a net gain of .91, to 122.40; rails gained .08, to 27.43, and utilities advanced .10, to 19.15.

Curtis-Wright led the most active list, up 1/4, to close at 8 1/2, in turnover of 11,900 shares. U. S. Steel was second with a gain of 1 1/2. Chrysler and General Motors, also among the actives, gained 1 1/4 and 1 1/2 respectively. There are suggestions that Great Britain may abandon plans to sell all or part of its security holdings and direct investments in the United States and may turn them over as collateral for some of the war material advances to be made after Congress passes the lease-lend bill. Estimates as of December 31 place the value of marketable U. S. securities held by the British at $616,000,000 and direct investments at about $900,000,000.

Amendments liberalizing the excess profits tax law passed the House yesterday without opposition and the legislation goes to the Senate. Report of Commonwealth and Southern for 12 months ended January 30 shows net of $13,433,387, or 13 cents a common share, vs. net of $13,499,459 in preceding 12 months.

Arrives at Budapest
Budapest, Feb. 26 (AP)—Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovic of Yugoslavia arrived here today to sign a friendship pact with Hungary on behalf of his government.

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Recovery forces made a little further headway in the stock market today but the progress was uneven. A midday upturn restored a majority of small advances to the list after an earlier dip. Some shares continued to lag, giving the market a mixed appearance near the final hour.

Bethlehem, threatened with a strike tie-up of the company's Lackawanna, N. Y., plant, was a pivot of the trading. It dropped more than a point, leading to selling in other steels, then rallied quickly for a fractional net gain. Transactions, somewhat heavier than yesterday, ran at the rate of about 400,000 for a full session. Bonds maintained the improved tone of the preceding sessions. Tin, recently strong on the flare-up in the Orient, dropped in London. Buying also subsided in other imported staples and commodity trends became confused. Down a little most of the time were General Motors, American Can, Air Reduction, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Republic Steel, Western Union and Boeing.

Mixed trends in the curb included minor advances in Bell Aircraft, Lake Shore Mines and Pan-steel Oil, balanced against slight losses in American Cyanamid "B," Humble Oil and New Jersey Zinc.

of "the normal rights of the working man." Preparation for an early legislative vote on a bill aimed at preventing "smear political propaganda" by prohibiting printing of political literature without identification of the printer or person responsible.

Assertion by Lieut. Gov. Charles Poletti that "fanciful stories" about legal fees paid him prompted introduction of a bill to require the governor, lieutenant-governor, comptroller and attorney-general to devote their "whole time and capacity" to their elective duties.

While these new financial currents swept about the Republican leadership, the committee on interstate commerce was having difficulties in determining how to amend their defense bills to overcome objections made at a public hearing.

The measures would permit closing highways to protect defense industries, control distribution of explosives, permit appointment of special judges to protect property of other states located in New York, allow police mobilization by the governor during emergencies and authorize state guardsmen to pursue suspects across state lines.

Gustave A. Strebel, president of the State Industrial Council (CIO), said the measures would prevent organized labor from functioning.

William P. Mangold, Industrial Union Council representative, maintained they would "seriously curtail or prohibit rights of labor to strike, to picket peacefully and to carry on any other lawful union activity."

The American labor party and Harry Sachse, counsel to the greater New York Industrial Council, also termed the bills "inherently unsound and anti-labor."

foreign policy, Nye represented the British aid bill as a legislative device which first would reduce congress to the status of a puppet parliament and then compel it to "rubber stamp" a declaration of war.

Nye, in the address he prepared to open the Senate's ninth day of debate, also charged that the United States navy already was compelling information pertaining to operations on the mainland of Asia.

Nye was the second opposition speaker in twenty-four hours to mention the Far East. Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) told the Senate yesterday that an unnamed member of England's parliament had forecast America's entry into the war soon "probably by way of the Orient."

Where Nye made specific reference to the Burma Road, China's supply line, as the subject of his interest, Wheeler remarked that he "would not be surprised any morning to learn that American troops had been sent to Singapore."

possibly a year, on completion of the work. For completion of the air corps' facilities expansion program, the committee recommended $33,030,920. It recommended $11,307,255 to complete accommodations and other installations for the enlarged garrison in the Panama Canal Zone.

Of the army's total, $25,198,825 was for projects originally included in the regular supply bill for the year starting next July 1 but for which an immediate need was said to have arisen.

One Major Change

The only major change made by the committee in the budget bureau's recommendations was the elimination of $1,743,080 for the elimination of police force for naval establishments to release marines for military training.

Part of the money for naval aviation would be spent as follows: $1,000,000 for purchase of four non-rigid airships—blimps—for coastal patrol and training; $2,280,000 for experimental airplanes and $4,824,300 for radio, photographic and aerological equipment and supplies.

Although the committee made no reference to the item in its report, it included $4,700,000 in the bill for development of the harbor at Guam to make it usable by long-range patrol planes and surface ships and for the installation of bomb-proof shelters and $8,100,000 for similar work at faraway Samoa.

The Guam project was a storm-center in two previous sessions of Congress because opponents contended it would offend Japan, a comparatively close neighbor as Pacific ocean distances go. The House voted to authorize the project last week without a ripple of opposition.

Funds also were recommended to carry on the work at sites of the new Atlantic bases, sites for which were obtained in the destroyers to Britain trade, including $5,100,000 toward the development of a fleet anchorage at Trinidad; $1,600,000 for machine tools and equipment for work under way in Newfoundland and $1,100,000 for similar equipment for the Bermuda base.

In all, the measure, would provide $27,858,500 for naval and air bases in Alaska; $46,943,050 for those in the Pacific and $61,745,500 in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

No Censorship Planned

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Lawell Mellett, director of the office of government reports, declared today that no press or radio censorship is contemplated by the administration. Testifying before the House expenditures committee on a bill to authorize a $150,000 fund for his office, Mellett said: "This does not mean, in case there should be war, that there would not be a military censorship in certain respects, as there always has been and I presume always will be. Censorship in the sense that I believe is feared, of the kind we see abroad—actual censorship of newspapers or other publications—is not contemplated."

may be located should a possible claimant appear.

Pine Boxes Used

Pine boxes, varying in size from 84 inches by 28, to 24 inches by 12 inches as required for the remains were used.

The state of preservation of the remains varied greatly. All were carefully uncovered and in the presence of the undertaker and a Water Board inspector, were removed with greatest care by a man wearing rubber gloves. A complete field record of each disinterment was kept, and the dimensions of each headstone as well as every inscription were recorded.

Many personal effects were found. Everything recovered was placed in the boxes with the remains and the covers were then screwed on tightly. Many name plates were found. Applicants were permitted to witness the removal of their kinfolk if they desired.

In 19 Cemeteries

The bodies removed were re-interred in 19 cemeteries all in Sullivan and adjoining counties. The marble headstones and footstones, totalling 1,595, were taken with the remains and reset. Monuments of more than 1/4 cubic yard, 118 in all, were likewise reset.

The work of removal was done by day labor with pick and shovel, the undertakers, specially selected, hiring their own help and paying them by the day by the grave, with three or four graves constituting a day's work for one man. The sod removed was replaced after the graves were back-filled. The search for "nearest of kin" covered two years.

Coma May End

Philadelphia, Feb. 26 (P)—The almost imperceptible fluttering of an eyelid was all that marked Miss Ruth Stevenson's battle for life today as the 22-year-old victim of an automobile accident entered the third month of her strange coma.

Temple University physicians believe the 63-day coma resulting from an injury constitutes a record. One physician said the longest previous period of coma from an injury was 28 days.

Cadets Capture 15th Straight by Beating Simmons, 33 to 31

Bud Hughes Gets Winning Field in Important Game

Jones and Rows Also Triumph; Shultis Gets 12; Zadany to Leave for Army Next Week

The fast pace in the City Basketball League was continued last night as the Cadets, with eyes on the second half championship of Division A, tacked up victory No. 15 in a row by defeating Simmons 33 to 31 in one of the best games of the season.

The Division B champs of round one and now a real contender in the senior circuit left very little for other clubs to hope for by registering the important victory over the Saugerties club. Rated as one of the toughest in the league Simmons couldn't stop the impressive streak of the Cadets, and thereby lost ground in the hot pennant race for coveted honors.

Tied at Half
At the end of the first half last night both teams were deadlocked 16-16. Again in the final two periods the quintets fought nip and tuck. Finally, however, Buddy Hughes stole the ball from Simmons, raced in and flipped in the winning score to give the Cadets a well-earned and an important game. Simmons' top scorer, Jones, was out of the game for the remainder of the night.

Rows had little opposition from the Y. A. by winning 40 to 19. The winners took an 18 to 4 lead in the first half and then went on to add to the total during the next two quarters. Kelse was the high scorer with 10.

In the other league contest Jones' trouped Schwenks by 44 to 21. Jess Shultis who scored 25 in the Mid-Hudson League Sunday evening, continued his high scoring activities with 12. Johnny Gilday had eight. George Zadany, who leaves for army induction next week, scored eight for the losers. The score at the half was 20 to 6 for the winners.

| J. Beichert | Pierre, S. D. (AP)—Bud Hyde, at 12, has graduated from marbles to bigger spheres and is marking up some kind of record with marbled bowling balls. He was city grade school marble champion last summer. His father, Charles Lee Hyde, Sr., bought him a pair of left-handed bowling shoes for his birthday—the lad already had rolled a three-game average of 192—and gave them to him two days before Bud was 13. He celebrated that night by rolling a 248, better than any man in town has done this season, and threw in a four-game average of 193 for good measure. |

Trainer at Work

Here is Doc Tadley, Philadelphia Athletics' trainer working on Bob Johnson, outfielder of the club, following a practice session at Anaheim, Calif. With the training season for the major league clubs well under way plenty of players have already come up with charley horses, strained ligaments and other injuries. This is one way in which the club trainer plays a big part in any major league team.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Feb. 26—Jack Dempsey and Arlene Judge are doing the rhumba in various night spots. . . John Munski, Missouri U.'s graduate miler, hasn't won a race since adopting a sweat suit with No. 13 on it. . . Georgia has begun spring practice for its football cheer leaders. . . Jock Sutherland is trekking through the south interviewing "sleepers" who escaped the National League draft list.

Whoops and Hoops
Here's one monopoly you can't blame on Mike Jacobs. . . Appanoose county, Ia., just has named its all-county girls' cage team as follows:

Forwards—Eva Tometich Numa, Kathryn Yakovich Rathbun, Mildred Zurich Numa.
Guards—Eleanor Lira Numa, Agnes Matkovich Rathbun, Marnie Kauzlarich Numa.

Short, Short Stories
Although Frankie Kovacs cleaned up nearly everything in Florida, smart tennis men are not going out on the limb for him—yet. They say his game was made for clay courts, and that Riggs and McNeill and the gang will make him holler uncle when they get him on the grass. . . We just have finished Al Schorsch's book, "Clowning Through Baseball," and we laughed so much it made our tonsils hurt. . . Pat O'Brien, the movie star, and Fritz Crisler of Michigan will attend the welcoming dinner to Coach Tom Stidham at Marquette tomorrow night.

Ed McKeever, who shifted from Boston College to Notre Dame with Frank Leahy (but who may go back there), has made 62 after-dinner speeches since football season closed.

Today's Guest Star
Jerry Mitchell, New York Post: "Some American Leaguers want Jimmy Fox to try for a second time. He says Paul Derringer, who works for the Cincinnati Nationals, is the best in the biz. . . They wish somebody would be kind enough to introduce him to Bob Feller."

Sports Cocktail
On a quiz program the other night, Bill Tilden was asked the size of a tennis ball—and didn't know it. . . When the Southern Conference once toured gets underway at Raleigh tomorrow, Paul Merton, sports editor of the Baltimore Evening Sun, will be refereeing for the 12th time since 1926, the ninth year in a row since the meet was moved from Atlanta after the conference split its territory in 1933. . . Latest name to be mentioned in connection with the Boston College job—Duke Nelson.

Challendon Looks Good
Los Angeles, Feb. 26 (AP)—Count Mr. Chalendon for the big race at Santa Anita Saturday unless something unforeseen happens between now and then. The big Maryland bay dispelled most doubts that he might not even get to the post in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap when he turned in a good workout yesterday, 1:55 4/5 for a mile and one eighth over a slow track.

'PORKY' TO ANSWER COUNTRY'S CALL
Ed (Porky) Oliver, young golf professional, has been notified to report in Wilmington, Del., for induction into the army under the selective service law. Porky will have to interrupt his tour of the southern tournaments, at one of which—in San Antonio, Tex.—this touching picture of him with a letter from his draft board was snapped.

Fort Myers, Fla.—Outfielder Roy Weatherly who is demanding a two-year contract, now is officially a holdout, as he is missing from the Cleveland Indians' second squad that reported yesterday. Clarence (Soup) Campbell, who had permission to report late because he's recovering from flu, turned up on time with Hal Trosky.

Aurelio. The couple left $2 each with Anita's mother to pay for parking tags fixed to their automobiles while they were getting married in a church. Germans Impose Martial Law Upon Netherlands Area

Amsterdam Strikes, Riots Are Cause of New Order; Punishment Forms to Be Severe

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Feb. 26 (AP)—German authorities today imposed a military administration on the province of North Holland because of strikes and riots in Amsterdam.

The strikers were ordered back to work by Thursday and were warned that imprisonment and even capital punishment might follow violations.

The proclamation was issued at The Hague by the German military commander, General Friedrich Christiansen.

"I have taken over executive power for the province of North Holland," he said, "in view of the present political situation."

Marching, meetings and demonstrations as well as assembling on the streets were forbidden. Political parties of all the Netherlands were banned from activity in the North Holland province. The wearing of uniforms or insignia of any kind was also banned.

Cases of violation of the order will be handled by military courts, General Christiansen warned.

"Provoking strikes or laying down on work will be punishable by 15 years, so far as not more serious penal laws are violated," he said. "When infringement of laws occurs in connection with enterprises for the army, to which all vital industries belong, capital punishment may follow."

The general named Air Force Lieutenant Siburg to direct the martial administration in the province.

The strike, which started among municipal workers, spread to private concerns. The demonstrations were part of a series which followed recent clashes in which various factions, including Dutch Nazis, were involved. The Germans blamed Jewish elements for the disturbances.

Local Crossing Project Is Listed Despite New Cut

A proposal to divert $60,000,000 of grade crossing funds to parkway and highway projects was discussed Monday at a conference between Governor Lehman and Chairman Moffatt of the Assembly ways and means committee.

At this conference it was disclosed that about $113,000,000 of the $300,000,000 grade crossing bond issue was still available.

Milo R. Maltbie, chairman of the Public Service Commission, has listed 51 "must" eliminations for the state, exclusive of New York city, Buffalo and Syracuse.

Under the assumption that only $20,000,000 would be available Chairman Maltbie listed 15 projects. Among the 15 was the Broadway elimination in Kingston.

Of the 15 projects listed three were on Long Island and the others upstate.

On the basis of $30,000,000 being available Chairman Maltbie added a $12,500,000 project in Niagara Falls.

Five further projects were listed.

ed on the assumption that $40,000,000 would be available, and another 30 projects were added on the assumption that $33,000,000 would be available.
